—ALEX. H. WASHBURN—

Divide and Rule — or Else

H. G. Wells, mystic Englishman who has been expert about making war in books, arrives in the United States with pert advice for Americans—and something tells me he is doing more straight thinking, now that the world is actually at war, than when he was merely forecasting it. Said Wells, getting off the boat at New York Thursday:

"I think Nazi Germany is getting near the end of her rope. The United States should stay out of the war, because your party politics would swamp anything like a reasonable settlement. You would do best by aiding England in every material manner possible. I think you are playing an excellent part now. Your people are getting educated to the realities, and you have been extremely helpful."

Speaking further, Mr. Wells expressed the sentiment of a great many Americans who, like your editor, feel that the whole truth hasn't been told about why, for the first time in all history, the entire world has been permitted to become allies against the English-speaking people.

It has been this newspaper's editorial position from the beginning that instead of signing a blank check in behalf of Great Britain's entire foreign policy we should aid England to prevent her actual surrender, mean while preserving intact our third-party position so that we can inquire into the diplomatic disaster which has placed every major power except ourselves against the British.

Something of the same opinion now comes from the mouth of Mr. Wells himself, a noted Englishman. He speaks of Russia, and blames Lord Halifax, British foreign minister, for the fact that Russia remains today perilously close to the Berlin-Rome axis.

Says Wells:

"The man I want to see go is Halifax, the quintessence of what all patriotic English-speaking men should be afraid of. I have a feeling, being a British citizen, that I have never been so misrepresented as by my present foreign minister."

"I should think if Halifax would make the peace it would be a very unsound one, because of his religious bias against Russia. Russia is absolutely necessary for any settlement of the war. Russia wants peace and does not want to spend her resources in warfare."

This is strange language, coming from an Englishman—but strange only because it isn't English officialdom speaking. We have great need today to consider official statements cautiously, and critically.

While arming our own country we should keep our eyes open to the diplomatic disaster which has permitted the whole world to be allied against us—remembering that if we are the smart men we think we are we will find some way of dividing the enemy camp. As a matter of fact, we should hold our leaders accountable for eventually doing that very thing—and kick them out if they fail.

Armament sounds big, makes good radio talk—but it also has been, in times past, a cheap "out" for stupid, wordy diplomats.

Magnolia Score First

Magnolia started the ball rolling to score first early in the second quarter on a recovered Paris fumble on their own 40 yard line, at which time Mr. Shelton, Parks and Boucher really went to town. Shelton made 16 through line and on next play Parks heaved a long pass to Boucher on the Dragons' five but penalty for clipping sets them back to the 20 yard line. Parks then passed to Shelton who was downed on the one yard line as the quarter ends.

On the first play of the second quarter Parks passed to Boucher for touchdown. Shelton kicked point.

Aerial Game Is Promised Local Fans

Badgers Will Have Three-Pound Weight Advantage Over Bobcats

The Hope High School Bobcats will meet a strong Beebe Badger team in a non-conference battle at Hammons Stadium Friday night at 8 o'clock. Victory over Beebe would give the Bobcats their first win in four starts, while Beebe has dropped a close one to Hot Springs and wallowed Benton 20-1.

Air Thriller

Indications that a pass thriller was in store for Hope fans were affirmed Thursday when Coach Hammon said that his boys would pass the ball all over the field. Much time has been devoted to pass offense and defense.

The Badgers have several basketball players on their team and of course this means trouble through the aerial route.

However, the Bobcats were strengthened by the return of Jewell and Martindale. Jewell has been suffering from a sprained ankle while Martindale has been in the hospital having a sore arm treated. Both will start Friday night.

B Team in 0-0 Tie

Coach Bill Brasher took the 8 team over to Texarkana for a game with the Texas High seconds Thursday afternoon and the local lads ran all over the field but could do no better than tie the "twins"-boys 0-0. Hope had two chances to score but missed both. Texarkana only got to Hope's 20 yard line once where they were halted.

Foy Hammons, Jr., passed and kicked the Texarkana's dizzy while Slade was the best ground gainer. In the line Cumble, Chance and McCormick played best.

Admission to the game Friday night is adults 50c students 25c.

Team average—Hope 151; Beebe 164. Line average—Hope 167; Beebe 172. Backfield—Hope 150; Beebe 155.

Buck Newsom Loses Father

Father Dies of Heart Attack After Son's Win

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Buck Newsom, pitching hero of Wednesday's opening World Series game, was absent from Crosley Field Thursday.

Sobbing brokenly, the big South Carolinian attended funeral services at a Cincinnati mortuary for his father, Henry Quillen Bufkin Newsom, who died in his hotel room Thursday. A physician said the 88-year-old retired farmer was victim of a heart illness.

Buck said his father died simply because he had lived long enough to see his son win a World Series game. Buck said that if he had not pitched against the Reds until Thursday he was sure his father would

Answering Your Questions About CONSCRIPTION

Congress Considering Law to Give Draftees Protection on Their Personal Obligations

WASHINGTON—Here is a chance to save a lot of readers of Hope Star time and postage in their search for information concerning one phase of service under the selective service act.

The NEA-Hope Star Selective Service Information Bureau has received literally hundreds of questions of this tenor:

What protection as a draftee will I have if—

1. I am involved in a civil court action?
2. If my dependents live in a dwelling for which the agreed rent does not exceed $80 per month?
3. If I have contracted to purchase real or personal property upon the installment basis?
4. If I have obligations relative to a mortgage on real or personal property?
5. If I am obligated to pay premiums on life insurance policies whose total face value does not exceed $5000?
6. If I have taxes falling due upon real property?

Law Under Consideration

The answer to all these queries is that there is not now any federal law on the subject.

In the World War Congress passed a law which gave protection and relief to soldiers and sailors in the active service of the United States. A bill congress is at present considering is drawn very much along the lines of the act passed in the last great war.

The bill has been favorably reported by the Senate Committee on Military Affairs and is now on the calendar of the senate.

It is not of much value to go into the details of the bill as it is at present written, because it may be amended in vital parts during senate discussions and again in the house of representatives.

Draft Boards Will Know

The main thing for prospective draftees under the selective service act is to remember that the law-makers are trying to devise a way to protect them, so they will not be financially crippled by giving service to their country.

They should watch The Star to see whether the bill becomes law and what its provisions are. Also the selective service local draft boards will be given full information on the subject and will be able to give draftees full advice, as will the army officers who will take charge of the men inducted into service.

Another moot point, which depends upon the form the law takes, is whether men who do not wait to be drafted, but enlist now for one year's training in the army, will also come under the scope of this legal protection.

Picture of World Series Thursday; Father of Detroit's Newsom Dies

Barrel, Tiger shortstop who walked in the first inning of the second World Series game Thursday, scores on Gehring's single to bring in the first run of the game. Sullivan, Red backstop, waits for the ball as Hank Greenberg, number 7, watches to make sure his teammate tagged home plate. Empire Ormsby is at the left. The Reds pounded out a 5 to 3 win to tie up the Series at 1 all.

G. L. Newsom, left, is pictured with his son Buck Newsom in their Cincinnati hotel Wednesday night after Buck, the Tiger hurler, had won the Series opener against the Reds. A few hours after this photo was made, the elder Newsom, who was 88, died of heart disease in the hotel room.

Surviving are one son, Ruel of Hope; two sisters, Mrs. Andrew Stroud of Washington and Mrs. Tom Bearden of Washington.

U. S. Discussed at Brenner Pass Meeting

Sources Hint that Rome-Berlin to Concentrate on Balkans

BRENNERO—(AP)—Directorate of the Rome-Berlin Axis, Benito Mussolini and Adolf Hitler, held a three-hour council of war Friday and discussed "all problems" confronting their countries according to a communiqué issued just before their parting.

Hitler's armored train headed back through the Brenner pass at 2:40 p. m. and Ill Duce's armored train rolled away southward five minutes later, leaving the world wondering what, if any, world rocking move had been planned.

(In Berlin general expectation was in evidence, in both official and unofficial quarters, that new Axis moves will be forthcoming soon which would astound the world. Informed persons in Berlin said that many indications pointed to the Balkans as the foremost subject.)

(The United States, her possible place in the long-range warplans of the Axis was reliably reported in Rome to have been a topic of consultation, along with plans for an all-front extension of the war against Britain.

Certain of Victory

ROME—(AP)—Hitler and Mussolini are so certain of victory that they can now begin drafting "great constructive lines in their new European and African edifice," Virginia Gayda, authoritative Fascist editor, said Friday.

"New points," decided by Axis leaders Friday, Gayda added, are "destined to affect deeply the course of war, political and economic evolution of continents into which war the Axis moves directly cuts."

Secret Revealed

BERLIN—(AP)—German authorized sources declared Friday, the very fact that Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini are meeting together at Brenner pass is an indication that big things are in the offing which might become evident soon.

The sources expressed the greatest indignation that the meeting was revealed prematurely, saying that "a movement of the chief of state was a military secret."

They said that in the event of retaliation they might invoke German espionage laws under which, they said, foreign journalists will fall as well as anybody else.

Italy on Greek Border

ATHENS—(AP)—Italian army forces in Albania, totalling 130,000 men and 120 tanks, have shifted their positions to new posts near the Greek frontier in the past few days, official sources said Friday.

Troop movements from Italy to Albania and Italy's recently acquired territory in the Balkans have been frequent recently and numerous ships are available in the Adriatic to speed additional forces across the narrow sea if they need, Greek government circles said.

"All precautions have been taken by Greece against a surprise from any quarters," official quarters declared.

Boots and Saddles Away From It All

AT Feature Service

DENVER—The louder the bombs burst in Europe the more do people shout "Bring me my boots and saddle."

"The war just speeded up our return to saddle and bridle days," says Harold J. Alps, veteran "hoss wrangler" at Estes Park, Colo., a tourist center.

"The way I've got it figured out is this: People have been living too much in the whirl of the mechanical age. They want a breathing spell. One of the best solutions is to get a 'hoss' and go riding."

At Estes Park, Alps estimates, there are at least 2,000 horses now, more than double the number there were a few years ago. This summer the town board ordered hitching racks constructed at strategic places, including the U. S. postoffice.

Biographies of Iowa, Ohio Are Traced In Two Fine Books

The story of America is rolling pretty regularly from the presses these days, novels and memoirs, river series, state guides and just plain history. It is a healthful sign at a time when the nation needs to know more about her great traditions and her incomparable heritage.

Latest contribution is the sovereign state series launched by Dodd, Mead and Company, New York. It begins auspiciously with the "Hawkeyes," a biography of the state of Iowa by Phil Stong ($3). Eventually, the publishers plan a book for every state, a project that may take 30 to 40 years to fulfill. Jonathan Daniel does "North Carolina" next, then William Allen White "Kansas," and Mackinlay Kantor "Mississippi."

It is a warmly intimate book that Stong writes, as usual. If ever you expect to get the flavor and the real tang of earth where the tall corn grows you can expect it in this book, which is a combination of Iowa history, reminiscences and no end of homely, commonsense observation.

Also a state biography, but from another publisher and handled from an entirely different viewpoint, is the absorbing tale, "The Buckeye Country" by Harlan Hatcher, profusely illustrated (H. C. Kinsey: $3.75).

Under so many "state books" laboriously grubbed out by half-literate scholars, "The Buckeye Country" is written with spirit, humor and grace. Hatcher knows his task, for he realizes that "You will seldom hear Ohio people mention the state as though it were the crown and jewel of the Republic."

But he knows that even this unobtrusive but solid state has historical glamor, pleasant physical features, a cavalcade of interesting figures past and present, and certain

Clubs

The Allen Home Demonstration club entertained the community with a fish fry in the grove near L. A. Urrey's store, on Blivins highway Friday, September 27.

Lee Garland and William Schooley installed the lights, prepared tables, ect. T. B. Fenwick and Mr. Mangrum fried the fish and potatoes. The club officials, Mrs. T. B. Fenwick, Mrs. Lee Garland, Mrs. L. A. Urrey and Mrs. Carol Schooley served and entertained over 100 members and visitors.

After lunch Mr. Garland gave a brief talk, on the need of more entertainment to bring the rural people into closer relationship and to influence interest in home demonstration club work.

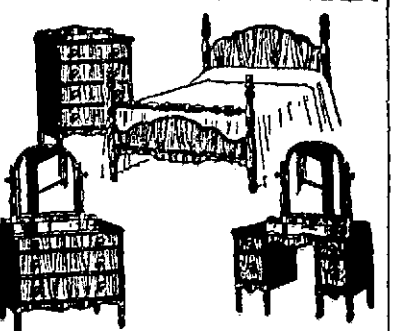

The children played games. The junior adults sang a number of quartets and some group singing, which was enjoyed by all. The older people, chatted, joked and laughed as only a group can when gathered around a big glowing bon-fire, on a crisp autumn night.

It was such a success that the club plans to have some type of entertainment more frequently. Among the guests for the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Hartsfield from California. Mrs. Hartsfield will be remembered as Miss Jesse Schooley of the Allen community and a former member of that club.

Bruce Catton Says:

By BRUCE CATTON, NEA Washington Correspondent

Administration Will Oppose New Drive by Hoover to Feed Europe

WASHINGTON—If it and when the campaign to sell the U. S. on feeding starving Europe gets started—and it's looked for some time this fall, probably under Herbert Hoover's direction—you can expect the Roosevelt administration to oppose it bitterly.

Its opposition will take two forms: a balancing of "starving Americans" off against the blockaded Europeans, and a plea that "it's a matter of building our country up until it's strong enough to defend itself before we build up a Europe strong enough to attack us."

All of this is clearly foreshadowed in official utterances of various administration officials—most notably, perhaps, in a speech made more than a month ago at Minneapolis by Milo Perkins, head of the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation.

Perkins asserted that more than 15,000,000 Americans are badly underfed right now; that if they all got enough to eat practically all of our surplus foodstuffs would be consumed; that an adequate diet for all Americans would mean an expansion in farm production, in place of the steady contraction of recent years—and that, in short, to call for the sending of food to Europe before American hunger is satisfied is a disguised form of appeasement.

Will Appeal to Generosity

As a matter of fact it was this target that Henry Wallace was really supposed to be aiming at in his famous acceptance speech, in which he wound up by accusing Willkie of seeking appeasement.

The Agriculture Department brain trusters who gathered material for him had expected he was going to hit the feed-the-starving-Europeans proposal. It's Perkins' speech, not Wallace's, that really lays down the administration "line" on the matter.

Understanding here is that the Hoover campaign will get rolling with in a few weeks, probably in the form of a series of direct appeals to the public. The administration theory is that since Americans are easily reached by an appeal to their generosity, the best way to meet such appeals is by stressing the amount of underfeeding that goes on at home.

Inter-American Trade Pushed

The State Department isn't in the least worried by the fact that the British have a trade mission in South America, even though some British exports might compete with U. S. exports there. As one State Department expert puts it, "If the British can take South American products that we can't take, we can't very well object to the success of British businessmen, can we?"

Much more interesting to the department are the trade discussions recently begun between Brazil and Argentina, the type of bi-lateral trade agreement the U. S. is interested in. No U. S. cash has been put up to

Initial Meeting of Bay View Reading Club at Home of Mrs. Gus Haynes
Resuming activities the club year, the Bay View Reading Club had a most interesting meeting on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Gus Haynes on South Pine street. The reception room was bright and attractive with graceful arrangements of pink and red roses. The meeting was called to order promptly at three o'clock, with the president, Mrs. J. A. Henry presiding. Mrs. T. R. Billingsley read the Constitution and By-Laws, and told the summer adjournment. The topic for the afternoon's discussion, "Inventions," was discussed in the roll call responses. "Inventions Helpful to Women," Mrs. W. W. Johnson, Program Leader introduced Dr. Elita Champlin, who had chosen for her subject, "A Ship Was Built" and in a most instructive paper gave the development of a ship from the "Dug Out" to a luxurious liner.

Stressing the different kinds of vessels now being built in the Defense Program she gave the details, and named the different inventions employed before the ship is complete. Ada Swenson told in the many discoveries made and used in perfecting plant life, giving details in regard to a soil lacking in different minerals, and the result of supplying these minerals. Mrs. Johnson closed this splendid informative program with a discussion on the invention of the recognized top liner invention now being put in use, especially in the United States, the Diesel Engine, giving most interesting comparisons with the previous motive powers. A rising vote of thanks was extended Mrs. Johnson and assistants for this splendid program. Following the program the hostess assisted by Mrs. Henry Haynes and Mrs. Hugh Jones served a most tempting plate lunch with hot tea. The next meeting will be held October 16th at the home of Mrs. E. E. White with Mrs. T. R. Billingsley and Miss Beryl Henry as hostesses and Miss Henry leading the program on "Educators." Roll call responses, "Early School Experiences."

Cosmopolitan Club Has First Meeting of Club Year
The Cosmopolitan club assembled for the first meeting of the year with an interesting program Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. R. Hamilton, with Mrs. Perry Moses as co-hostess. The business session was presided over by Mrs. R. L. Broach, the president, who called for the report of the standing committees. The constitution was read by Mrs. Jim McKenzie, parliamentarian. Mrs. Joe Black, chairman of the yearbook committee, distributed most attractive yearbooks which told that the year's programs would be based on hobbies.

The program leader for the afternoon was Mrs. Perry Moses, who chose as her hobby sewing and designing. Mrs. W. D. Hamilton gave the history of the fashion plate from the time of the life sized Pandora dolls to our present day patterns, "Clothes to Suit Your Type" was the subject discussed by Mrs. N. Nallon Wyllie, who illustrated her talk with silhouettes showing various types of figures and giving principles for choosing clothing to fit individual differences. Mrs. Moses gave some practical suggestions for planning and making children's clothes which was followed by a very clever fashion show of youthful models, who described their costumes in verse. Barbara Hamilton in a knitted coat, Judy Moses in a black velvet pinafore with white embroidered ruffles, Martha Hamilton in a sailor dress and Sue Moses in a sailor suit stressing the patriotic motif, and Jan Moses in housecoat and night gown were very charming examples that showed that children's clothes can be both practical and attractive.

A desert plate with coffee was served to seventeen members including two new members, Mrs. Kelley Bryant and Mrs. Edwin Hankins, and one visitor, Mrs. Nathan Harbour.

Mrs. Oliver Adams Is Hostess At Afternoon Bridge
Mrs. Oliver Adams entertained at bridge on Thursday afternoon at her home on South Main street. Effective arrangements of colorful zinnias were used to decorate the cardrooms where two tables were arranged for the players.

Mrs. Thomas Kinser and Mrs. R. V. Herndon Sr. received the lovely gifts for high scores after several spirited games.

Those playing included: Mrs. Thomas Kinser, Mrs. Malcolm Porterfield, Mrs. R. D. Franklin, Mrs. W. R. Herndon Sr., Mrs. Charles Harrell, Mrs. M. M. McCloughan, Mrs. A. K. Holloway, and Mrs. Tom McLarty.

At the conclusion of the games, the hostess served a delicious salad plate with an iced drink to her guests.

First Meeting of the Year Of the Brookwood P. T. A.
Mrs. S. L. Murphy presided at the first meeting of the school year of the Brookwood P. T. A. at the school on Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

During the business transactions, plans were made for the school's participation in the School of Instruction to be held at the High school on Saturday, September 5th. Mrs. B. C. Hyatt introduced the members of her faculty, and Miss Patricia Thompson's room received the dollar for having the largest number of parents present.

Miss Beryl Henry was a guest and spoke on the "Object of the Parent Teacher's Association." She also introduced each mother present in a most charming manner.

Thursday Bridge Club Is the Guest Of Mrs. Dick Forster

Two tables were arranged for the members of the Thursday club and one table was arranged for guests at the weekly meeting on Thursday at the home of Mrs. Dick Forster.

After several games the high score prize was awarded to Mrs. Robert La Grone, who was followed by Mrs. Alston Foster and Mrs. Billy Duckett.

The hostess served sandwiches and coffee to the members and the fol-

SERIAL STORY

All characters, organizations and incidents of this serial are entirely fictitious.

YESTERDAY, KIDNEY AND VERA were in the office, but Vera explained its loss early. Mr. Clark was so busy that he couldn't help her. She must solve the problem herself. What if Nick and Vera have anticipated discovery? In that case, Sue Mary would be made a fool.

"MEET ME HERE—TONIGHT"

CHAPTER XXIII

LUNCHTIME came and Sue Mary put on the wide-brimmed straw hat that made her look like a little girl, deepened the golden glints in her brown eyes. Her tan linen dress flared from the hips in the same way it had delighted her, when she had worn it for the first time weeks ago. The bangles on her wrist still jingled merrily, but she was too absorbed in her distraught thoughts to feel the confidence a well-groomed girl usually possesses.

She was so absorbed that she literally ran into Nick before she saw him in the lobby of the office building.

"So blind you can't see me?" he demanded, taking her by the elbows and shoving her back away from the crowd coming from the elevators. "I'm not sure that pleases me."

She drew a frightened breath, but managed to hide her fears and smile. "After all, one doesn't expect to see you here."

"But here I am, and guess why?" His dark face was close to hers and his eyes looked deep into her startled brown ones.

"To see you, my dear. When a man's in love he wants to see his girl. And there seems to be less and less chances these days. Sue Mary, you know that. At the hall there are always people; people wanting me to do this and that; asking questions, wanting to talk. And at the apartment—"

He shrugged his shoulders. "Well, there's either Vera or Natalie—"

"But Nick—!" She didn't know what was coming, but she instinctively prepared herself. "What else—?"

"I have to talk to you, darling."

Following guests, Mrs. Billy Duckett, Mrs. Evan Wray, Mrs. Robert La Grone, Mrs. Connor Boyett, and Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson.

Mrs. Frank Barr Names Mrs. Thompson Evans Jr. as Honoree
Mrs. Thompson Evans Jr. a recent bride, was again feted on Thursday afternoon, when Mrs. Frank Barr entertained at bridge on Thursday afternoon.

Playing bridge from four tables were the following, Mrs. Thompson Evans Jr., Mrs. Dale Jones, Mrs. Garrett Stow Jr., Mrs. Terrell Corneli, Mrs. Robert Wilson, Mrs. T. S. McDavitt, Mrs. Herold Porterfield, Mrs. Vincent Foster, Mrs. Bill Wray, Miss Elizabeth Bridgwell, Miss Mary Ann Lile, Mrs. Lyman Armstrong, Mrs. Olin Lewis, Mrs. Merlin Coop, Mrs. Rufus Herndon Jr., and Mrs. J. F. Gorin. Tea guests included Mrs. Louis Crain, Miss Mary Della Carrigan, and Miss Polly Brock.

After the games, the hostess, assisted by her mother, Mrs. J. F. Broening, and Mrs. Roy Anderson served a delightful salad plate with coffee.

Personal Mention

Miss Bernice Erwin is the guest of Mrs. Sybil Munn in Prescott.

Jeff Murphy left Friday morning for Russellville, where he will spend the weekend with his son, Lee Roy Murphy, who is attending Arkansas Tech.

Mrs. Catherine Webb of Stuttgart is visiting her sister, Mrs. E. G. Coop, and Mr. Coop and other relatives and friends in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Brannan and Dr. and Mrs. W. R. Alexander are Friday visitors in Texarkana.

Percy Burton, Jr. of Lewisville was in Hope Thursday to see the football game in Hammons stadium.

Friend of Clifton Carroll Booth will be glad to know that he has been removed to his home from the Julia Chester hospital, where he underwent a tonsil operation.

R. R. Forster of Shreveport is the guest of his son, Dick Forster, and Mrs. Forster this week.

Mrs. Earl O'Neal left this week for Barnes hospital in St. Louis, where she will go through the clinic.

Mrs. C. C. Lewis of Prescott is spending Friday with friends in the city.

Miss Wanda Lane, Miss Mary Sue Kent, Wallace Van Sickle, Tom Pat Cook, and Joe Olmstead of Magnolia A. & M. attended the A. & M. - Paris Junior College football game on Thursday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Parker of

I must. I—I thought, perhaps, tonight. She felt her mind whirling. Tonight—but tonight Nick and Vera meant to come to the office for those papers. "Tonight," she repeated stupidly.

"Yes, dear. Natalie said you had to work late last night. I thought maybe we could talk here. I could meet you and take you home—"

"But Nick—!" she groped for words trying to understand how this new move fitted the picture. "But—I don't work every night. Last night was an exception."

"You could do it again. If it meant we could see each other. Talk together. Give me a chance to tell you what's in my heart."

"But here—!" she repeated. "Why here?"

"Because we could be alone, and that's what I want, darling. Alone with you for just a little while."

"You could pretend you had some work left over from last night. You could be here for just a little while," he repeated. "And I could take you home. Say 10 o'clock, Sue Mary. We could meet here, and then in an hour—less if you wanted—we could leave."

"Promise me, darling. There's so much I want to tell you. So much—!" He leaned toward her, kissed her lips and abruptly vanished into the crowd on the street.

THE food before her on the drug store counter was tasteless. She ate her sandwich and drank her milk, but she wasn't conscious of the taste of either.

If Nick meant to carry through his plan with Vera, why did he wait for her present? And surely, after the careful groundwork laid by Vera, he wouldn't toss the whole thing aside even if—as he so ardently insisted—he was in love and did want to see her.

But that was ridiculous, she told herself. She knew real love with Joe, and she knew Nick wasn't in love; not really. This was a move in his game, but she still couldn't see how she would fit in. Unless he meant to involve her so deeply that she couldn't disclose what was going on.

Her hands grew cold and she could feel the breeze from the drug store fan dry the perspiration that broke out on her brow. What if Vera knew she had been in the office last night in time to witness her scene with young Ross Clark?

What if they were both afraid of how much she knew? Perhaps they planned to make her serve as an accomplice tonight and thereby keep her from disclosing their plans?

She had a feeling that they didn't trust her. She knew they didn't respect her fear her intelligence. To them she was still the naive, lonely little girl who, strange and bewildered, with nothing to do and nowhere to go, had fallen into their group. She had swallowed their philosophy, followed their course, allowed herself to be used to their advantage.

If she could only think. If she could only see what to do.

She knew she couldn't stand idly by and permit them to carry out their plan. Every instinct of decency, every instinct of Americanism within her rebelled. They didn't know the meaning of patriotism. She smiled a little. I'm thinking like a Girl Scout, she said to herself.

Only, in these days, patriotism had suddenly become something vital and terribly important. With a world cracking about you, with your country—the country in which your parents and grandparents had worked and toiled and lived to make it free and safe—now faced with stark danger—patriotism was much more than a word, or a verse, or a song, or a line from a poem.

It wouldn't have been so bad, she thought, if I could stop and think this thing out clearly, sanely, but there's Joe, too. What was happening to him?

She closed her eyes and pictured him in the hospital; quiet, motionless on the white bed, his blond head swathed in bandages, doctors and nurses moving about him; consultations, X-rays, diagnoses, operations.

Life without Joe— She gripped the marble top of the counter as she felt her head swim in dizzy circles and a pall of blackness began to descend. The coolness of the marble, the breeze from the fan gave her strength. Somehow she got back to the office.

There was a note on her desk. Call Mercy Hospital. She had left her number and begged she be notified of any change. Now something had happened.

She tried to dial the number, but her fingers shook so that the numbers slipped by aimlessly. Tears dimmed her eyes so that she could barely see.

If he was worse— But she didn't dare think of that. He couldn't die. Couldn't leave her. She waited the number again and waited for the answer.

Robert Cummings, Deanna's Sweetheart in Lavish Film

First actor to gain the honor of playing the masculine leading role with Deanna Durbin twice is Robert Cummings, whose object of the star's affections in her current picture, "Spring Parade," at the Saenger Theater.

Just a few seasons ago Cummings made his first appearance with Miss Durbin in Universal's "Three Smart Girls Grow Up."

The role proved to be the turning point in Bob's life, as for some months previously the young star's career had been in a bit of a slump. "Three Smart Girls Grow Up" provided him with a role played, and shot him into a popularity he'd never enjoyed before.

Pasternak Credited
Cummings credits producer Joe Pasternak and director Henry Kostor with discovering the type of character he could play best.

"I had always been cast in parts where I was supposed to be a weakling who becomes hysterical when things start to go bad," Bob says. "Koster and Pasternak discovered I had a bit of comedy ability and weren't afraid to take a chance."

The actor is portraying the role of a devil-may-care, flirtatious young man in Deanna's new "Spring Parade."

Conspicuous Roles
In his first picture with Deanna, "Three Smart Girls Grow Up," there was no romance between the star and Cummings. In "Spring Parade" he's the man she falls in love with. It will be the first time Deanna has had a real sweetheart on the screen.

The German propaganda hiring of Nazi plane losses would hardly be the one to keep his own golf score.

Candidates for public office still boast they came from poor but honest parents. A shame the children of many of them can't say as much.

Ellen Scores for Teachers

Former Bobcat Makes Lone Tally Against Abilene

NORTH LITTLE ROCK — Lucky to hold off their fighting opponents in the first half, the Arkansas State Teachers College Bears took complete charge in the second to defeat the Abilene (Tex.) Christian College Wildcats, 7 to 0, in North Little Rock Thursday night.

Following two assaults at the outset of the third quarter that failed, the Bears succeeded in their third attempt to score the only touchdown in a game that held the interest of a crowd estimated 3,000 throughout.

Losing their first two scoring chances on pass interceptions, the Teachers stuck to the ground as Bobby Ellen of Hope sprinted 17 yards to the goal on a snappy end-around play. Tommy Leftwich of Pine Bluff was substituted for Rush after the touchdown and converted with a placement.

Arkansas probably would have had another touchdown had the game last-

Much Interest in Church Meet

Methodist Revival to Close Sunday Night

The Revival at the Methodist church continues to draw large crowds. Much interest has been shown throughout the entire series. Twenty sessions have been made and interest continues at high peak. The meeting will close Sunday night, communion service at 11 o'clock.

There will be no Saturday morning service, but the usual meeting will be held Saturday night. Mr. Martin announced Thursday night that the Young Peoples meetings in the afternoon had increased in attendance and interest as the meeting progressed.

Reverend Kenneth Spore took for his sermon Thursday night the question, "Elijah asked the people of Israel and the Prophets of Baal, 'How long halt ye between two opinions?'" He gave an interpretation of the term Baal as "numerous gods," a name applied to all heathen gods. He said, "this passage is the most interesting to me in the Old Testament. Elijah called upon all the people to make a decision; he appears before Ahab and prophesies a drought for three years because of the evil the people had committed. When Ahab received the word that he was coming, he thought the opportunity had arrived when he could get even with Elijah for making the prophecy, but Elijah was so intense in driving home his lesson that the people said not a word. The trouble with Ahab," he said, "was not Elijah, but sin." He made practical application of this portion of the Scripture, and stated further that the "trouble with us is not one person but ourselves; our sins keep us from serving God. Sin had brought havoc with the people of Israel and this was a simple rebuke for the sins of which they were guilty. The trouble is that they recognized their duty to God, but sin kept them from doing their duty. We recognize His power, but do not serve him. We know him, but have not given our lives to him. Our troubles does not consist of not knowing what is our duty, but it is doing it after it has been recognized. Many people who should be in a church, and recognize the fact that they should be there, put it off with the statement that some day they expect to give over their lives to Jesus, but someday may be too late. Elijah is accusing Israel for forsaking him, but he is accusing them for being indifferent. There are far more dangers in an unoffered prayer than there is in an answered prayer. We know we should pray, but our indecision paralyzes us to the extent that we do not know what ought to be done. Indecision is harmful because it leads to wrong actions. Jesus said, 'He that is not with me is against me.' There is no middle ground. Elijah asked the people, 'How long halt ye between two opinions?' He made an earnest appeal to the children of Israel in making first of all an explanation of the false gods. He brought to mind the goodness of God toward the Israelites through all history and then he put the question, 'How long halt ye between two opinions?'"

Regular service Friday night for the Young People and also after school; and the regular service in the main auditorium will be held at 7:30.

Wolves to Play Catholic High

Prescott's Game to Be Closing Fair Feature

The Prescott high school "Curly Wolves" will meet the Little Rock Catholic high school "Rockets" at Cummins Field Friday night in the closing feature of the fourth annual Nevada County Fair.

The Wolves have been defeated twice in their only games, but improved defensive work should enable the "Wolves" to make a battle of it in this one.

The "Wolves" will be meeting for the first time a team near their weight and several players who were injured in the first scrap, are returning and expecting to see plenty of action Friday night.

No actual comparison is possible as neither team has met a common foe, and neither has been able to break into the victory column as yet.

Probable starting lineup for the "Curly Wolves" is Kelly, and Garner ends; Britt and Wise, tackles; Adams and Elmore, guards; Harrison, center; in the backfield, Willis, left half; Colton, right half, Wylie, quarterback; and Captain Bill Stainton will call signals from the fullback slot.

Outstanding members of the "Rockets" are Rossi, 170 pound half back, and Captain Ernest Kresse, right guard.

PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT NO. 30
Proposed by the General Assembly and filed in the office of the Secretary of State on 15th day of March 1939.

BE IT RESOLVED BY THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES AND SENATE OF THE STATE OF ARKANSAS AND MAJORITY OF BOTH HOUSES AGREEING THERETO:

That the following is hereby proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the State of Arkansas, and the same being submitted to the electors of the State for approval or rejection at the next general election for Senators and Representatives, if a majority of the electors voting thereon shall so vote, the same shall become a part of the Constitution of the State of Arkansas, to-wit:

Section 1. Amendment No. 29 to the Constitution of the State of Arkansas is hereby repealed.

Section 2. Vacancies in the office of the United States Senator, or elector of the State for approval or rejection at the next general election for Senators and Representatives, if a majority of the electors voting thereon shall so vote, the same shall become a part of the Constitution of the State of Arkansas, to-wit:

Section 3. The Governor, Lieutenant Governor and Acting Governor shall be ineligible for appointment to fill any vacancies occurring or any office or position created, and resignation shall not remove such ineligibility. Husband and wives of such officers, and relatives of such officers, or their husbands and wives within the fourth degree of consanguinity or affinity, shall likewise be ineligible.

Section 4. No person holding office contrary to this amendment shall be paid any compensation for his services. Any warrant, voucher or evidence of indebtedness issued in payment for such services shall be void.

Section 5. The appointee shall serve during the entire unexpired term in the office in which the vacancy occurs if such office would in regular course be filled at the next general election if no vacancy had occurred. If such office would not in regular course be filled at such next general election the vacancy shall be filled as follows: At the next general election, if the vacancy occurs four months or more prior thereto, and at the second general election after the vacancy occurs if the vacancy occurs less than four months before the next general election after it occurs. The person so elected shall take office on the 1st day of January following his election.

WE THE WOMEN

"Dog-In-Manger" Attitude of Divorced Couples Just Messes Up Their Lives More

By RUTH MILLETT
We see increasing numbers of divorcees who aren't really divorced. For years after they legally end a marriage, they go on seeing their ex-husbands under the impression that they are being smart and sophisticated by being "friends" with the men they divorced—probably on grounds of incompatibility.

It's rather exciting for the ex-Mrs. X to meet Mr. X for lunch—especially if she has a new hat she'd like to have admired. It is fun to flirt with him under the guise of friendship. And even more fun forward words to say nonchalantly, "I had lunch with Jim, my ex-husband, yesterday."

It is also gratifying to Mrs. X, if she divorced a man who still cared for her, to know that as long as she keeps playing around with him, no other woman has a very good chance of getting him for a husband. She doesn't want to make a home for him, but she doesn't want him happy with anyone else.

Or sometimes it is Mr. X who has the dog-in-the-manger complex. He wouldn't stick to his marriage with Mrs. X, but he certainly doesn't want her to put him entirely out of her life, and find someone else to take his place.

Definite Break Is Best
Not while he can keep her emotionally upset over him, just by taking her to lunch or dinner once a month, or dropping around to her apartment to be cheered up. No. Keeping an ex-wife on the string gives him entirely too much ego-satisfaction, so he'll keep on seeing her as long as she is too weak to tell him she is through.

Not content with messing up a marriage, these half-way divorced men and women go on messing up each other's lives.

It is interesting to study and compare the four Gospels, and in the course of these lessons it will be instructive to consider how much Luke publishes that the others do not. His Gospel is much fuller, for instance, concerning the early events in the life of Jesus as it is fuller in the story of the resurrection and post-resurrection experiences.

Who was Luke? We do not know a great deal about him, except that he was a physician, the friend and for a time, the companion of Paul. He was evidently a faithful companion for while he is mentioned in the portion of our letter from Colossians along with Demas, there is a later reference to Demas as having forsaken Paul, although he says that Luke is still with him.

There is a note of steadfastness in Luke's Gospel and in the Book of Acts. He sees events always in their largeness and full significance. There is in all that he writes adequate perspective.

He is not simply the historian, writing down cold facts; he is the earnest disciple, deeply moved by these facts, with a sense of the reality and power of the Gospel that his pages are recording.

Luke's Gospel was written for his friend, Theophilus, who may have been in Luke's mind the figure for any "lover of God" which the name Theophilus implies. In any case, Luke wrote for many millions more readers than he had in mind, and few writings have so enriched the world as has his Gospel.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON
Luke's Gospel Is More Colorful Than Mark's, but Not as Direct, or Simple
Text: Luke 1:1-4; Acts 1:1; Colossians 4:14; II Timothy 4:11a

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of Advance
From a quarter's lesson in studies with the poets and philosophers, we turn again to studies in "The Universal Gospel," based on the Gospel of Luke. These studies will extend over a six-month course.

The Gospel of Luke was not, as the writer indicates, the first of the Gospels to be written. As Luke himself states, there had been others who had "drawn up a narrative concerning those matters which have been fulfilled among us" and the things that had been preserved by these writers from eye-witnesses.

Foreign Styles Are Forced Out

U. S. Backing Talent Designers About Home

By AMY PORTER
AP Fashion Writer

Foreign fashions have a hard time getting recognition these days, with everyone in America shouting about home-talent designers.

Nevertheless, the dressmakers of London and Paris are still doing business at their old stands—the Britishers running up seams between quick dashes to bomb shelters. Those few samples of their products that have reached America indicate the Europeans haven't lost their fine talent for clothes creation.

The British designs presented by the International Wool Secretariat in New York were an ovation from a society audience.

Lavishly Decorated
The evening wools were lavishly decorated with beads and sequins. Most of the suits were shown with blouses of fine wool—a trend that is already under way here.

The British consul general, Godfrey Haggard, said the show was "permissible propaganda to prove we are still doing business during alterations." Reports from France state that the haute couture, or what is left of it in Paris, is still issuing style edicts. Levin has lengthened skirts on all daytime dresses to reach well below the knee. But, with no American buyer on hand to see the new Levin silhouette, it's unlikely that we in this country will start letting out hems to conform.

Aim to Please U. S.
Certain French houses now making their headquarters in London aim to please American trade. Molyneux's new London collection conforms to silhouettes already established here, depending for news interest on "sensational use of detail in cut."

Two important members of the French couture, Schiaparelli and Mainbocher, are doing business in this country.

Schiaparelli is touring the country with a small collection of her American-made originals, and Mainbocher has announced his plan to open a New York establishment.

Soon May Be Followers
But already the people of this country are more interested in American design than in foreign-name creations. It is quite possible that former style dictators will now fall in line with American fashion trends, rather than set trends themselves.

It seems probable that another year will see America firmly launched upon her own independent course in fashion.

march ball on kick-off to Mulderiders three yard line where, the big fullback Anderson plunged over. Kick for extra point was good tying score 7-0. Balance quarter saw the Dragons knocking at the Mulderiders goal line.

Early in the third quarter as a result of a fumble and a bad kick the Dragons took the ball on Magnolia's forty and marched to the Mulderiders' 10 where the ball went over on downs. Magnolia punted out and two plays later Johnson skirted his left end for 55 yards and a touchdown.

Kick for extra point was no good. Two plays later Johnson took the ball on his own 44 and ran to Magnolia's 4 yard line and went around left end on next play to score. Surra's kick was good.

Both teams saw-sawed up and down the field for balance of game.
The Lineup:
PARIS: Roach, 185 Boucher, 180
Cnyse, 230 Redding, 185
McCormick, 205 Goodman, 170

New Pattern of Government Needed to Save Democracy, Says Stewart Edward White

Twenty-third of 24 articles on "Our Country," written for NEA Service by the nation's most famous authors.

By STEWART EDWARD WHITE

It is a commonplace to say that it is up to us—the "preservers of democracy for the world," now that it has practically disappeared.

But I think our job is bigger than merely preserving a form of government. There is to be a drastic readjustment. Nobody—anywhere—is going to live just as he lived before. There is going to be a new pattern, and we have the chance to blueprint that pattern. And it has got to be a new pattern. Otherwise we shall land—later—just where this one has landed—the rest of the world.

History has conducted itself on the basis of self-preservation, with the accompanying greed, indifference to the other fellows, intrigues, cruelties and treacheries necessary to carry out that scheme of things. We have faithfully returned to that basis every time we have been jarred away from it by catastrophe, though mere self-preservation is no longer the vital issue. And our devotion to it has obscured for us the two underpinning truths on which this "democracy" we talk about depends.

The creator is more important than the thing-created, no matter what it is. When the thing-created is made more important, you have totalitarianism.

Now we have this job of "preserving democracy" and redesigning the pattern for life simply because originally our republic was laid down backslid somewhat, especially lately. We have been exalting the thing-created at the expense of the creator.

It has not taken us many years to build that golden calf, but the things we are beginning to sacrifice to it are the slow growth of age long struggle. Such simple things as sacredness of promise; sense of moral obligation; ordinary veracity; personal integrity; individual liberty; elementary virtues, spiritual values. And by just that much we are turning to totalitarianism, no matter what we call ourselves. Democracy is not a form of government; it is a pattern for government. Lately we have been forgetting that. Nevertheless most of the old stanchness is still intact.

We can do the job. But not on the old material basis that has collapsed—each day for itself and devil take tomorrow—man is made for the thing he fashions, including government.

Washday in Memphis on the Grand Scale
MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Mrs. A. J. Housewife would be bewildered at the city's washing machine. It uses hundreds of gallons of water, clean a barrel of soap suds, throw half the city's trucks and cars into a huge pot of water is heated to boiling point and the soap is dumped in. A derrick lowers a basket of machine parts into the water. At a two-hour bath, the machine comes out clean and shining.

"RED RYDER"
a daily cartoon in THE STAR, now a smash serial at the SAENGER, breaks every record at Hope's big house for

Hope Star
Hope, Arkansas.
Dear Sirs:

When Republic Pictures announced that the famous NEA Service cartoon "RED RYDER" had been made into a serial I immediately booked it as the Saturday feature at the Saenger theatre.

I was banking on the fact that from its very first issue this cartoon had run every day in HOPE STAR, making RED RYDER a household hero throughout all the Hope trade area.

The Saturday that the "RED RYDER" serial opened the Saenger broke all house records, and for the 10 weeks that it has run it has shown the greatest popular interest of any feature ever introduced at this theatre.

Chapter No. 11 runs this Saturday, October 5; and we'll be sorry when Saturday, October 12, rolls around — for on that day "RED RYDER" gallops across the Saenger screen the last time.

Red Barry is a grand actor, and Republic Pictures made a great serial — but it was the daily columns of HOPE STAR that put the biggest Saturday crowd into the Saenger, the opening day of "Red Ryder"; and once we got them there the best serial in years kept bringing them back.

Yours truly,
REMMEL YOUNG
